Social science that makes a difference

HSRC

Vision

The HSRC seeks to transform its existing disciplinary strengths into a more relevant, modern and comprehensive service function:

- From social databases to social-scientific knowledge management
- From social research to national socio-economic research programmes
- From educational assessment to policy impact evaluation

Strategy

The HSRC implements a five-part strategy to complement its vision:

- Increasing contract research earnings in line with annual targets
- Undertaking assertive outreach to tertiary institutions and research NGOs
- Focusing its research programmes on the needs of users
- Enhancing performance in line with annual targets
- Achieving excellence in research through scholarship, debate and professional engagement

Contents

An exciting development has been the identification of new priority areas of research. This reconfiguration of the organisational architecture, moving away from rigid separation into disciplinary sectors, has enabled the HSRC to be more flexible and responsive to social needs.
